THE EQUESTRIAN CONGRESS .-- Coming coming. come to town, is the great Railroad Circus, with music and banners, and armoured knights, and gymnasts, pantomimists, hurdle racers and clowns, and all that vast array of resources which has made the Circus entertainment of Messrs. Spalding & Rogers so

Another candidate for equestrian suprema-cy, (and the greatest of all, if the world's estimate is reliable) James Hernandez, is entered for the price at the circus tournament. Hernandez left America three years ago, beyond comparison the best rider then here, and during his absence, he has far eclipsed every-thing in England, France, and the Continent generally. On his return, young Hernandez. loaded with the laurels of his European campaign, finds his claims for supremacy questioned by young Robinson who has matured during his visit abroad. There is no dispute amongst the profession that Hernandez and Robinson, the two competitors in horsemanship now here, are the best two equestrians in the world, and the strife cannot fail to be in-

Washington is thronged with equestrians, gymnasts, clowns, and musicians who make pretensions to superiority in their respective departments, and the throng naturally includes the very best only, since ordinary skill could scarcely hope to succeed The unusual spectacle of the living champions of every branch of the circus collected in one ring, will probably never again be presented in this

ODD FELLOW'S FUNERAL -There was a large turn out of Odd Fellows, yesterday, on the occasion of the funeral of Richard G. Purdy. Columbia Lodge, together with mem-bers of the Grand Lodge and of the Encampment, followed the remains of their deceased brother to Glenwood Cemetery. The procession was marshaled by Mr. Wm H. Nalley, and was preceded by Esputa's full band The funeral sermon was by Rev. Mr Samsor, and the Chaplain, Mr W. G. Bond, read the solemn ritual at the vault. Mr Anthony Buchly, the undertaker, deserves especial credit for the perfection of the funeral arrangements.

The hearse used on this occasion was entirely new, from Mr. Buchly's establishment, and demonstrated what our Washington mechanics are capable of turning out in the way of good and tasty workmanship.

P. P. -We are particularly requested to call attention to the advertisement headed P. P. P., to be found under the head of "Wants." A gentleman frequently visits April 10th. to buy anything the inhabitants have to sell, giving a fair price for the same. He especially purchases old books, standard, miscellaneous, law, medical, curious, &c , by the volume or library; and for some scarce books littering about their houses, perhaps unused or not looked at for years, and often considered as useless lumber, may dispose of tisement directs.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—The fair beneficiary Miss Agnes Robertson, had a fine benefit on Saturday night, and the performances went off handsomely, albeit they were gone through gas took its time to go out in the midst of Bourcicault's highly finished personation of Sir Charles Coldstream in "Used Up," but of Co Bourcicault, with ready wit, availed himself of the accident to make a hit or two which brought down the house, and so carried of the farce | decideratum

ARRIVALS -Rev. Daniel E. Reese and Rev. A. Cookman were in this city yesterday. Mr. Reese was formerly the pastor of the Methodist Protestant church on Ninth street, and is very popular among his sect. He is now stationed at Charleston, S. C., but is suffering from an affection of the throat that prevents his preaching at present. Mr. Cookman is a son of Rev. G. G. Cookman, who was lost in the steamer President some years ago. He is intimately acquainted in Washington, and his friends were glad to see him in the pulpit formerly occupied by his father. Mr. Cookman preached yesterday at the Wesley Chapel, and among other distinguished hearers there congregated we noticed President Pierce.

FREE FIGHT-MAN FIGHT, DOG FIGHT-WO might say dog fight only; but as they all came off about the same time, near Crittenden's brick yard, yesterday, the Sabbath afternoon, we had as well mention all. The dog fight occurred first; then came the man fight, and an offer to "lick any man in the crowd for twenty-five cents," which produced the free fight. We are told that it is a neighborhood that might be visited occasionally by the police. None of the gang were arrested though the brown jug had assisted greatly to make a general arrest easy.

Accident .- On Saturday, Mr. Lewis, huckster in the Centre Market, was severely injured by the starting of his horse. He had been feeding the horse, and had taken off the bridle to allow him to eat. The horse suddenly started, and Mr. Lewis clung to his mane and was dragged in that position from the market space over Seventh street bridge. Mr. Lewis was picked up by some persons near by and taken to a house near the canal. His head was badly cut, and the physician states that he was injured internally.

SINGING CLASSES. - We would call attention to the advertisement in another column of Mr. William Palmer, who proposes establishing singing classes in a more effective manner than has hitherto been practised. Mr. Palmer is too well and favorably known in our community to need any recommendation at our hands, but we will add that we think his plan of dividing his pupils into small classes-as soprano, mezzo soprano, and contralto voices, a very judicious one.

ALARMS OF FIRE .- Saturday night the companies were called out by a false alarm of fire, ratus. Last night another false alarm was given, which did not end so quietly. A collition of the compabut they speedily returned with their appapanies on the Avenue near Twelfth street. It was rather unfortunate that the Auxiliary Guard were answering to their roll-call when the difficulty occurred.

rowdies were traveling about in the Smithsonian grounds, behaving very improperly, and using profane and indecent language when ladies were near enough to hear their remarks. If such persons cannot behave themselves properly they should be cast out of all public places.

TRINITY FAIR AT ODD FELLOWS' HALL continues open, it will be seen, only to night and to-morrow night. This fair justly deserves the liberal patronage it has received both for the praiseworthy object in view by the ladies who get it up, and on account of the variety and beauty of the articles offered for sale.

A DISPUTE SETTLED -Yesterday, Captain Birch was sent for to settle a difficulty between two families of respectable colored persons. The Captain heard their statements, and held all hands to security for peace, and they left his office highly pleased with his decision.

GAS LIGHTS .- The lights at the hotels, on the streets, and in several churches, expired rather suddenly last night without notice hav ing been given to supply candles. This has occurred two or three nights in succession.

ADVERTISEMENT. GAS! YES ALL GAS!-The idea that all the consumers of that article that have been compelled, night after night, to close their places of business, thereby incurring heavy losses and debarred the pleasure on their arrival at their residences of a well lit fireside, believe the representations of some of the employees of the "Gas Company," that the present de ranged state of the "gas" was solely attributable to the action of the frost upon the coal this one reason, as assumed, spread before the world would not speak volumes in favor of the saneness of Washington gas consumers, (if believed by them,) but, to the contrary, would lead one to believe that they have never seen Washington, and will do so on Thursday next, a gas light. ADVERTISEMENT. GAS .- Mr. Editor: The universal complaint against the Gas Company you must have heard, and in your own establishment must feel the annoyance. The recent card published by the Superintendent, accounting for bad gas and no gas at all, is but a poor excuse. The idea that because the company have poor coal on hand they must use it before getting another supply, is no more excuse than one of us should use bad beef because we have been cheated and have it on hand You never hear of such excuses from gas com panies in other cities. Is coal so far off that it takes weeks and months to obtain a supply? The anneyance felt by all the hotels, to say nothing of private consumers, by the gas being turned off at six o'clock in the merning, and not let on until after dark in the evening, is cause for real complaint. There is a petition now before the Committee on the District of Columbia, for a charter for a new company, and were it brought before Congress, I think no argument in its favor would be so conclusive as a mere reference to the present management of the existing company.

ADVERTISEMENT. GAS .- We have made inquiries as to the inadequate supply of gas for the last few nights, and find the causes to be, first, in the coal received of late, which on account of exposure, probably, is of less strength than usual, though costing the same price; second, the high winds from the 20th of March to the 3d instant, blowing without an hour's cessation from one quarter prevented the chimney from drawing, and consequently, no heat could be gotten up on the benches, and the coal remained unmelted in the retorts. The officers and employees of the Company are working day and night to remedy these unavoidable but unfortunate mishaps, and from the industry shown we feel confident that a few days will put everything to rights again. The loss to the Company is as great as the annoyance to its consumers.

Verdict against the New Jersey Ferry Co. PHILADELPHIA, April 7th .- The jury in the case of the Steam Ferry boat case rendered a verdict late last night, attributing the deaths in that disaster to the worn out, leaky, and defective boiler-to the inefficiency of Richard Letter, who inspected it, the general unfitness of the boat for the transport of passengersand the omission of the company to properly man, equip and provide means of escape in case of fire, explosion or collision. The verdict exonerates the officers of the boat who did all in their power under the circumstances. to save those on board. A preamble which was, however, only approved by a portion of the jury, censures the company in the strongest manner.
